graven image, Nor in the rich chant of a melodious voice. I am not bound by theories, Nor corrupted by beliefs. I am not held in the bondage of religions. Nor in the pious agony of their priests.

I am not entrapped by philosophies, Nor held in the power of their sects. I am neither low nor high, I am not the worshipper nor the worshipped. I am free. My song is the song of the river Calling for the open seas, Wandering, wandering. I am life.

Life has no philosophy, No cunning system of thought.

Life has no religion, No adorations in deep sanctuaries.

Life has no god, Nor the burden of fearsome mystery.

Life has no abode, Nor the aching sorrow of ultimate decay. Life has no pleasure, no pain, Nor the corruption of pursuing love. Life is neither good or evil, Nor the dark punishment of careless sin.

Life gives no comfort, Nor does it rest on the shrine of oblivion. Life is neither spirit nor matter, Nor is there the cruel division of action and inaction. Life has no death, Nor has it the void of loneliness in the shadow of time.

Free is the man who lives in the eternal. For life is.
